Electronic Newsletter No.1 (March 2019)

PRESIDENT's Note

Sigurborg Jónsdóttir, Iceland

Spring is in the air and Easter just two weeks away. A lot has been happening in our different Associations and there is as usual plenty to read in this Newsletter. The article on two German teachers from Lithuania gives wonderful insights on how they see languages, language learning and teaching. The UN has declared 2019 as the International Year of Indigenous Languages and Finland reports on the very positive development of Sámi, the indigenous languages, while foreign languages are not doing so well. From Iceland we read about workshops organized together with the Institute of Vigdís Finnbogadóttir. Estonia tells us more about their participation in developing international exams. An exciting project. It would be really interesting to know, whether students in our area are taking internationally acknowledged language exams and if it is increasing. A certain proficiency level is not only necessary in order to study abroad but is often the key to getting the position the student is aiming at. Certification of one's language level is something of value and can make students see the sense in really applying themselves to language learning. Europe and even the whole world is becoming more or less one market area or at least closely connected.

We will get a good chance to discuss all this, face to face 11. - 12. June 2020 at the next NBR Conference in Reykjavík, Iceland. The theme will be "The Future of Languages". You are all warmly invited to join us there. Please spread the word of the Conference. We will soon be sending out calls for papers. There will be lectures, workshops, poster presentations and plenary talks.

ECML Programme Developments (Information from the European Language Gazette)

"Learning environments where modern languages flourish": EOL tools and resources tested by 28 participants from 28 countries

The key challenge of the project "Learning environments where modern languages flourish" (EOL) is to support schools that wish to establish language friendly learning environments which promote the exchange of related resources, research and practice. The project is supported by a European network of partner schools, with innovative approaches to establishing language friendly learning environments which promote the exchange of related resources, research and practice.

During the recent workshop (Graz, Austria, 7-8 March 2019) 28 participants from 28 countries had the opportunity to familiarise themselves with the holistic approach to language education that is at the heart of the EOL project and tested tools and resources developed in this context. EOL-Matrix: parameters which lead to learning environments where modern languages flourish.

One of the main project outputs is a matrix offering an overview over different fields and areas which might support schools in developing learning environments where modern languages flourish. The matrix matches 4 “environmental levels” (learner, class, schools, system) with 5 dimensions of language learning:

- Language and languages - Operational dimension;
- Valuing languages - Ethical dimension;
- Interculturality - Experience dimension;
- Enriching curricula - Curricula based dimension;
- Everyday languages - Existential dimension.

The tool should help schools to identify new opportunities for and through languages. The goal is modelling schools towards a language friendly learning environment. The matrix is a dynamic tool and has been tested and improved throughout the 4 years of the EOL project. It will be linked to a glossary and a series of tools and resources. All project outputs will be made freely available on the ECML website in the course of 2019.

"Action research communities for language teachers": webinar recording available on the project website

The ECML project “Action research communities for language teachers” (ARC) has supported teachers in European classrooms in using action research as an essential tool for the development of reflective classroom practice - highlighting ways in which teachers can enhance their self-confidence and professionalism. The webinar (recorded on 25 January 2019) provides an insight into the experiences gathered over the 3 years of the project (2016-2018) and the results achieved.

In the webinar (<https://www.ecml.at/ECML-Programme/Programme2016-2019/Professionallearningcommunities/tabid/1868/language/en-GB/Default.aspx>)

the project team and colleagues involved in action research speak about their experiences with action research in national contexts, the resources they developed and addressed questions raised by participants:

- Christine Lechner, Pedagogical University, Austria, ARC - project framework;
- Angela Gallagher-Brett: SOAS, University of London, UK: "The ARC-Spiral";
- Inge Alfredson: Avedoere Lower Secondary School, Denmark: "The discovery of the intercultural dimension in English lessons through action research"
- Kenan Dikilitas: Bahçeşehir University Turkey: "Action Research at tertiary level: Field notes from a research mentor";
- Sunny Lau, Bishop's University, Canada: "Participatory action research: promotion of language teachers' self-efficacy and advocacy for socially just plurilingual pedagogy".

All project outputs (guide to action research applicable in different European settings, case studies and training modules) are in the process of finalisation and will be made available in the course of this year.

Public Service Language Centre Celebrating Centenary (50+50)!

Born almost on the same day (just 2 days difference), two friends and colleagues, two professional German language teaching and examination experts, outstanding teacher trainers and charismatic personalities, happily married wives and loving mothers creatively combine professional career and happy family life. In April 2019 both Ramunė Sarnickienė and Regina Mačiuitienė are celebrating their 50th anniversaries, and to the Public Service Language Centre it is a double celebration - a Centenary 50+50!

Ramunė Sarnickienė and Regina Mačiuitienė are the „core“ of German language teaching at the Public Service Language Centre (PSLC), which is the founder of the Language Teachers' Association of Lithuania in charge of the bookkeeping and finances of the Association since the very beginning when it was founded in 2006. For their rich German language teaching experience and professional expertise both ladies could be easily granted the name of German language teaching „benchmarks“ in Lithuania. If you contacted Goethe Institut staff in Vilnius and asked them for two references of top German language experts, the two names would undoubtedly be Ramunė Sarnickienė and Regina Mačiuitienė.

Ramunė Sarnickienė

Ramunė Sarnickienė, Deputy Director at the Public Service Language Centre (PSLC) in charge of German language teaching and international Goethe Institut (GI) examinations is the chief examiner and a teacher trainer both within the PSLC and on the national level. Holding awards from the Minister of Education and Science of the Republic of Lithuania for her merits promoting German language teaching in Lithuania, Ramunė is an active member at the Association of German Language Teachers of Lithuania and annually contributes to the National German language Olympiad for school children of Lithuania.

Ramunė was born on 19 April 1969 in Vilnius. After graduating from Vilnius University with the Master Degree of German Philology for several years she worked as a German language teacher with young learners, and later started teaching German language to adult professionals at the PSLC where she has been working for around two decades.

Since 2001 Ramunė Sarnickienė has been working as the head expert of the GI examination team, training teachers of German language. Due to professional expertise of the German language teachers' and examiners' team as well as successful cooperation with the Goethe Institut, in 2012 the PSLC was issued the license empowering the institution to administrate international GI examinations.

Constantly upgrading her professional competences as a German language teacher and examiner and acquiring necessary leadership skills as a teacher trainer Ramunė has prepared a highly professional team of German language experts - teachers and examiners - who offer their top-level services both at the PSLC and nationally.

Ramunė is happily married and has two adult daughters. Below she is sharing life memories and giving recommendations on how to learn a foreign language:

Life memory

„The most memorable date for me is the night of 13 January 1991. I was in my final year at University, and as all students those days I was engaged in political events of Lithuania, the country that had just reestablished its independence from the Soviet Russia. It was a really exciting and moving time. On that night we headed towards the Parliament with a strong intuition that it was the place of major importance which was under threat. We were standing there and waiting... I am not sure if we could have been of any use as protectors, but those hours, that atmosphere and understanding that we were taking part in the history, will never be forgotten.”

How to learn a foreign language

„While learning a foreign language you need to „immerse” into it, i.e. try to read as much as you can in this language, practise the language in everyday life situations, and naturally listen this language spoken. I strongly believe that the more you practise listening the better speaking skills you acquire. And sure, it goes without saying, that learning should be fun.”

Regina Mačiuitienė

Regina Mačiuitienė teaching German at the Public Service Language Centre (photographer M. Juknevičiūtė, 2019, Vilnius)

Regina Mačiuitienė, German language teacher and examiner at the Public Service Language Centre (PSLC), was born on 17 April 1969 in Rokiškis, Lithuania. After graduating from Vilnius University with the Master Degree of German Philology for several years she taught German language at the Faculty of Economics and Communication at Vilnius University. Later she started working at the Goethe Institut (GI) as the coordinator for German language teaching and international examinations where she promoted GI examinations and strengthened trans-institutional cooperation between GI and PSLC.

Regina has been holding a license of GI examiner since 2001 and has been constantly upgrading her professional competences as a German language teacher and examiner and acquiring necessary leadership skills as a teacher trainer at the PSLC.

In 2008 Regina defended her Master Thesis in Educology on the topic „Non Formal Adult Language Learning“. The results of her research indicate that the dominating purpose of language learning is to improve foreign language communication skills. Learning another language might be influenced by various instrumental and integrational motivation factors. The quality of non-formal language education depends on social and psychological factors. According to her survey results, the attitude towards an unfamiliar country, learning motivation and independent learning may be interrelated. To ensure successful learning process the teacher needs to provide efficient social and psychological learning conditions and assist the learners while discovering their individual learning styles.

Regina is happily married and has three children. Below she is sharing life memories and giving recommendations on how to learn a foreign language:

Life memory

„On 11 March 1990 Lithuania reestablished its independence from the Soviet Russia. At that time I was in Eastern Germany studying German language as an exchange student. The news then were brief and unexpected, the students' and teachers' congratulations sounded careful, but my great joy that I am returning to free Lithuania celebrated a victory over the Western pragmatism.”

How to learn a foreign language

Language cannot be separated from the country. Learning a language is moving step by step towards the culture of the country, learning about its politics, economics... While learning a language we are also learning new rules of communication and cooperation. It is extremely exciting and useful.

Greetings from Finland

Outi VILKUNA, The Federation of Foreign Language Teachers in Finland SUKOL, Member of the Board. https://www.sukol.fi/in_english

The number of pupils studying in the indigenous Sámi languages is increasing. The number of both pupils receiving instruction in Sámi and pupils studying Sámi as a voluntary foreign language in basic education has increased in the early part of the 2000s. Now there are pupils studying in Sámi also in Helsinki.

Sámi can be the language of instruction, or pupils can study Sámi as mother tongue and literature or as a voluntary foreign language. According to legislation, pupils living in the Sámi home area who are proficient in Sámi, shall be given instruction mainly in Sámi. The Sámi home area in the Finnish Lapland includes the municipalities of Utsjoki, Inari and Enontekiö, as well as Vuotso, which is located in the northern part of the municipality of Sodankylä. Three Sámi languages are spoken in Finland: Northern Sámi, Inari Sámi and Skolt Sámi.

Between years 2006 and 2016 no pupils outside the Sámi home area received instruction in Sámi. This, even though the majority of Sámi children and adolescents nowadays live in other parts of Finland. The situation is slowly changing: for example, the Pasila primary school in Helsinki has offered classes taught bilingually in Sámi and Finnish since August 2018.

One factor affecting the possibility to study Sámi outside the Sámi home area is whether distance learning is available. In May 2018, the Ministry of Education and Culture granted funding to the municipality of Utsjoki until the end of 2020, for a project promoting remote access to study Sámi.

UN has declared 2019 as the International Year of Indigenous Languages. The Sámi National Day is on 6 February.

2019 UN International Year of Indigenous Languages

The Federation of Foreign Language Teachers in Finland has published its' goals for the parliamentary elections coming up later in spring 2019.

The association demands equal rights and possibilities to all students (lower and upper secondary, vocational education and higher studies) to study foreign languages regardless of their place of residence. High quality language teaching also requires enough funding at all levels of education.

SUKOL eduskuntavaalitavoitteet (only in Finnish)

Here You can find statistics on Foreign Languages studied at grades 1 - 6 and 7 - 9 from 2017.

In 2017 almost all (99,4%) of students in grades 7-9 studied A-English (as that is mainly the language offered as A1-language). Optional B2-English has not been that popular.

In 2017 German was the most popular B2-language in grades 7-9 with 5,3% of all students in that age group compared to 2,7% studying French and 2,0% studying Spanish. There were in total 19 873 students in grades 7 - 9 studying a B2-language in Finland.

Almost all students completing upper secondary studies have had English as A-language compared to 8,3% taking the matriculation examination in A-Swedish, 5,6% in A-Finnish and 2,5% in A-German. There were only 5 335 students taking the matriculation examination in another Foreign Language besides English.

These figures are most alarming and the association is campaigning at all fronts to raise awareness on the importance of keeping our foreign languages competence as high as possible and ensuring the availability of quality teaching throughout the nation.

NEWS from STIL - March 2019

Petrina Rós Karlsdóttir, President of STIL

STIL has been organizing in cooperation with The Vigdís Finnbogadóttir Institute of Foreign Languages Workshops in language teaching. Teachers' workshops are collaborative projects between the Vigdís Finnbogadóttir Institute and the Language Teachers Association in Iceland - STIL.

There have already been 2 workshops, one in November. The subject of the workshop was "Teaching Writing in Secondary School" by Dr Patricia Prinz from Ireland.

This workshop provided an overview of concepts teachers in secondary school to incorporate into their upper level language classes to help students preparing for university writing tasks.

Another workshop was in February directed by Ármann Halldórsson, M.Ed. Teacher of English and Philosophy in Upper Secondary School VERSLO.

Workshop: Lectio divina: Armann introduced methods for working with texts that come from liturgy (mainly Christians). The methods were on the one hand lectio divina and on the other hand the Florilegium. The idea was to download from Harry Potter and the Sacred Text, using these techniques on secular texts. Participants will be asked to include phrases from literary works that are dear to them to make the Florilegium. These methods are more suitable for work at upper levels of language learning, but it may also be exciting to consider various possibilities for adaptation. This approach is in the spirit of the "slow" movement.

The Third one this winter will be in the end of April will directed by Asta Ingibjarnardóttir, an assistant professor in French at the University of Iceland's Department of Language and Culture.

This workshop gives language teachers the opportunity to get acquainted with the use of drama in the spoken language.

STIL just started the committee of organization for the next NBR 2020 Congress with the Association's members.
